This is the best cigar I've been tasked with reviewing all year, at least amongst the cigars where I'm smoking three cigars for a review. Quite frankly, it's not close. This is the best cigar I've smoked – in my limited experience – from Patoro. This is the best cigar I've smoked from the De Los Reyes factory. It's a strong candidate for one of the 10 best cigars I've reviewed in the last five years. Most of the cigars that are able to achieve scores like this on halfwheel do it because they are super complex with tons of flavors and excellent construction. This sort of bucks the trend as the VA XO Extra Belicoso doesn't have a ton of individual flavors; rather, what flavors it has it delivers in incredible detail.
